AARP says that 28% of seniors age 65 and older live alone. This social isolation is debilitating to their health in many ways. Loneliness, depression, increased chance of dementia and decline in general health can all be attributed to living alone.

People living in places without adequate public transportation are much less likely to go to the grocery stores, take part in community activities, see friends or visit their doctors

Notes

To whom it may concern:

I use the Freedom express.
If wasn't them, I would not be able to go to the store or pick up my meds and other other places.

I am thankful that this service is available to me.

Carrie is always very helpful and very helpful.

In all, this service is a blessing to people like me.

This service is WONDERFUL.

Thank you,

Carol O
